

Postgraduate Diploma in Theology, Imagination & Culture

Validated by the University of Winchester

PROGRAMME DESCRIPTOR 2018/19

Please read the following carefully.

Dates and Times

The Postgraduate Diploma is completed part-time over a minimum of two years and a maximum of four years. Students at Sarum College usually complete the Postgraduate Diploma within two years. Students who satisfactorily complete six taught modules (120 credits) gain a Postgraduate Diploma awarded by the University of Winchester. Students who satisfactorily complete three taught modules (60 credits) and exit, obtain a Postgraduate Certificate. Further details of student registration and progression are available in the University of Winchester's Academic Regulations for Taught Programmes.

All students will begin the Postgraduate Certificate in September. Students attend six 3½ day intensive modules at Sarum College supplemented by preparatory reading, individual study, tutorial support, access to the Sarum College Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) and assessed written work.

All taught modules are worth 20 credits. Students are expected to complete the Core Module and the Mandatory module (compulsory) and four Optional Modules.

For a list of module dates, please refer to the 'Academic Diary 2018-20' document.

Hospitality Costs

Students are not required to stay at Sarum College during a Module, or take up any of the meals. However, if they choose to do so, the hospitality rates are currently: £232 (residential, en-suite), £190 (residential, standard) and £55 (non-residential).

Note: all fees and prices will be reviewed at the beginning of July each year

The residential charge (whether en-suite or standard) covers: bed and breakfast from Monday to Thursday, lunch from Tuesday to Thursday and supper from Monday to Wednesday, plus refreshments throughout.

The non-residential charge covers: supper on Monday, lunch Tuesday to Thursday, plus refreshments throughout. As noted above, students can opt out of the hospitality element entirely and are very welcome to bring in their own meals and refreshments.

(Note: occasionally, in the case of bank holidays etc, a Module may run from Tuesday to Friday. All meals referred to in the above would then be shifted along one day e.g. the first evening's supper would be on the Tuesday etc.)

CORE MODULE

Theology and Human Culture (20 Credits)

This module will engage with the 'texts' and practices of human culture and encourage students to explore the nature of the relationship between theology and culture through creative and critical perspectives. Students will be given the opportunity to refine and update their knowledge of theologians and key theological debates as they relate to human culture, show how central themes in theology are expressed through different forms of culture in history and today, and be given the opportunity to critically reflect on human culture through a variety of interdisciplinary perspectives. Students will be introduced to the interface between the divine and human culture and become familiar with the distinct methodological approaches taken within the sociological, philosophical, and theological studies of culture. Students will attend to the interdisciplinary nature of the study of culture from the 17th century to the present day and as such gain an appreciation of the creative interactions between different ways of understanding culture. As the core module, students will also be introduced to relevant research methods and skills as part of their induction to the programme.

MANDATORY MODULE

Text, Interpretation and Imagination (20 Credits)

The images, stories, myths and teachings of the Bible have served as a foundation for the Western cultural imagination. The Bible, when read in each new cultural context, both challenges the readers' cultural assumptions and is challenged by new ways of reading which spring forth from the readers' distinct perspective. The discipline, art and craft of hermeneutics require that one become sensitive to both the reading of the text and the act of being read by the text. Students will engage in critical and creative hermeneutics as well as a deeper and closer reading of the Biblical texts themselves, and see how these texts inform, and are informed by human creativity. Students will pursue inter textual analysis and offer the opportunity to make comparisons between different types of text (sacred and otherwise) and be encouraged to explore a variety of original and imaginative interpretations of certain biblical texts.

OPTIONAL MODULES

The PGDip at Sarum College offers an exceptionally wide range of Optional Modules. Each module runs every other year and the dates of the Optional Modules will be available two years in advance to help students plan their programme of study. For an up-to-date list of module dates, please see the Academic Diary.

Re-imagining Church in a Changing Culture (20 Credits)

Much has been written about the dramatic decline in Church membership and attendance as evidence of 'the death of Christian Britain' since the 1960s to the present day, raising questions about the future of the institutional church in particular and 'organised religion' in general. This module aims to go beyond such 'headlines' to equip students to understand and critique patterns of decline and growth which are characteristic of the church in the 21st century using both theological and sociological tools. The Church in the UK will be 'read' in the wider context of social, religious and cultural change, and compared with the situation in Europe, America and the developing world. Both the challenges facing the contemporary church, and the responses offered, will be critically examined; with particular reference to patterns of community, mission and ministry. This module will enable students to acquire the necessary tools to understand the Church in mission in contemporary culture. It will offer the opportunity to appraise new ways of being Church and assess different types of Church growth both past and present. Students will be encouraged to learn about different cultures and explore different theologies in relation to mission e.g. liberation theologies, black theologies green theologies and the contemporary missional conversation.

Theology and Film (20 Credits)

This course will explore the growing field of theology and film. Students will become conversant in the language and history of cinema, noting specifically the unique ways in which film uses technology, editing, framing, and sound to convey meaning. After a brief introduction to film studies, students will then explore the historical relationship between theology and film, with specific reference to the reception (ranging from prohibition to utilisation) of film by the Christian Churches. Students will spend considerable time looking at and studying selected films, allowing students to develop the critical skills helpful for film interpretation and explore possible theological approaches to film criticism. Students will investigate the claims that contemporary film provides an alternative site or location for religion in the context of modern consumer societies.

God, Beauty and Imagination: Theological Aesthetics (20 Credits)

The aim of this course is to explore how God, beauty and the imagination have found expression in art, literature and music and how these themes have been reflected in theology. In so doing the module will provide an introduction to some major art-historical epochs and subjects and examine how artists have engaged with and have rendered Christian dogmas, such as the life, death and resurrection of Christ, the Trinity, Mary, the church etc through various means from the Renaissance to the twentieth century. How to interpret works of art, literature and music from a theological perspective will be a central feature in the course. Students will read and discuss relevant writings by contemporary and past theologians relating to themes in theological aesthetics, such as imagination, beauty, divine revelation, truth and meaning, and artistic forms as a locus theologicus.

The Bible: Cultural Critique and Transformation (20 Credits)

The study of the bible and its various theological forms and genres in the past two centuries has been dominated by questions of historical veracity, reliability and credibility rather than the imaginative construction of reality that many of the biblical texts contain. In this module we will seek to explore the relationship between the way in which certain biblical texts, stories and forms present their own distinctive portrayals of reality and how such portrayals can be appropriated in our current cultural context. Attention will be paid to the various forms of 'public theology' that are lodged in specific areas of the biblical literature and texts. The module will also investigate what is meant by the modern phrase the 'social construction of reality' and how this compares with theological alternatives and/ or similarities that are present in the biblical texts. The question of how such portrayals of reality are critically received and interpreted in differing historical and cultural contexts will also be explored. The module will also consider what is meant by contemporary theological and philosophical notions of reality and the role played by metaphor and the imagination in such conceptual awareness.

Relocating Religion: Cultural and Spiritual Realignments (20 Credits)

Co-validated with MA in Christian Spirituality

In a so called 'secular age' has religion and more specifically Christian faith and belief simply disappeared from public view altogether? Do modern people no longer require the 'sacred canopy' of religion to feel at home in the world? Has the idea and practice of religion become so tarnished with notions of religious fundamentalism and extremism or institutional irrelevance and corruption that by and large, in Europe at least, most people leave it to a small minority of others to be religious on their behalf? Or is it the case that spirituality and religion have simply re-located elsewhere? Has popular culture become a more convenient and comfortable location for religion than our institutional churches? Do secular people now find religion in aesthetic experiences or in consumerism? Is it the new technologies of robotics, cybernetics and artificial intelligence where people locate religious motifs and future hopes? Or is secularism itself a by product of Christian freedom and responsibility in the world? In this new module we will examine these and a range of other questions as we seek to examine the equivocation and uncertainty that now surrounds the modern experience and practice of religion in the 21st century.

Mass Culture: Theological Engagement and Spiritual Practice (20 Credits)

Co-validated with MA in Christian Spirituality

This module considers the phenomenon of mass consumer technological culture as the backdrop to spirituality and 'doing' theology in our age. Students will explore and analyse powerful contemporary habits of leisure and lifestyle in relation to older classical ideas of leisure with its inherent relation to the dynamic of spiritual life and romanticism. The module will examine ways in which leisure and lifestyle activities take over and mimic religious modes of orchestrating emotion and producing identity, examining the writings of sociologists, social anthropologists, social critics and theologians that seek to address and/or interpret this situation. The module will trace the emergence of different ways of interpreting the phenomenon of the 'modern'; especially the different and diverse ways in which mass culture has been understood throughout the genesis and development of modern culture.

Worship, Art and Architecture (20 Credits)

Co-validated with MA in Christian Liturgy

The space in which Christian worship takes place is influenced by the culture of the age and place as well as ecclesiology. This module will investigate church buildings and their art in significant historical periods in order to highlight the way each artefact is the result of a confluence of variables. The theoretical notion of 'sacred space' will be explored and students will be encouraged to reflect upon the use of liturgical space in specific contexts. There will be a guided tour of the architectural features of a church (e.g. Salisbury Cathedral).

Liturgy and Culture (20 Credits)

This module will investigate the relationship between liturgy and its changing cultural contexts. This is a topic that has become increasingly important for churches as they reassess their relationship to society and for liturgical studies as churches and scholars recognise the significance of cultural context for liturgical development. The module will introduce students to different ways of understanding the relationship between culture and liturgy, and the implications and theological assumptions of each approach. Reflection on these issues will be in relation to liturgical examples and policy documents of the church and their critics. Students will be encouraged to reflect critically on the implications of the material discussed for their own liturgical context.

ADDITIONAL MODULE INFORMATION

The teaching component of each module begins on Monday* afternoon and then run from 9.15 am until 5.15 pm on each full day over the next three days. Students may be residential or non-residential. Each intensive course will involve 20 classroom hours. In classroom sessions, learning will occur through a variety of methods, including lectures, discussion groups, and student-led seminars. During this residential portion of the module there will also be time for meeting with tutors and use of the library. Tutorial support (by visits, skype, telephone or email) for each module will be available until the completion of the assessed written work. Students receive further support through the Virtual Learning Environment (SarumLearn) which will offer students access to key reading materials, discussion groups, module-specific knowledge bases, and formative assessment exercises.

Each taught module (20 Credits) is completed over a three month period: three weeks of pre-course reading; the intensive at Sarum College and a further two months to complete the assignment(s).

Please note: This course demands a real time commitment for individual reading, study and written work. This involves preparatory reading prior to each teaching week and significant work afterwards to complete the additional reading and written work.

How to Choose Your Optional Modules

Please note that apart from the Compulsory and Mandatory Modules, four Optional Modules are needed to complete the Postgraduate Diploma, these may be obtained in the following ways.

1. Choosing four of the Optional Modules offered in the Theology, Imagination and Culture programme at Sarum College.
2. Substituting one Optional Module from one of the three other MA programmes at Sarum College

Students may only take one external Optional Module (from another of the Sarum MA programmes) and this must be agreed by the relevant Programme Leaders.

Attending Modules as General Study Courses (normally referred to as Auditing)

Students may attend modules in addition to those which they are studying for credit, by permission of the Programme Leader. The hospitality rates will be the usual student rates which are currently £232 (residential, en-suite), £190 (residential, standard) and £55 (non-residential), with an added education fee of £100. Please note that students must give clear information on whether they are attending modules as part of their accredited study in advance of attendance. Should the module be oversubscribed, preference will be given to students taking the module for credit.

Note: all fees and prices will be reviewed at the beginning of July each year

Library, Information Technology & Bookshop

Registered PGDip students will have membership of the College library for the duration of their course and access to the Virtual Learning Environment. They will also have access, when the College is open, to the IT facilities. The Sarum College Bookshop is a unique theological resource. Students registered for the PGDip automatically receive a discount. Books may be purchased by mail order.

Fees and Methods of Payment

Please see the separate document 'Fees and Methods of Payment 2018/19' for full information about fees and payment methods.

Withdrawal from Study

Students withdrawing from the course will be charged the full year's fees for the number of years of study that have been commenced, plus any additional modules over and above three modules in year 1 and six modules in year 2. The date of withdrawal will be the date of receipt of a formal notification of withdrawal by Sarum College.

Period of Study

The fees are calculated on the basis of 2 years of study at £2260 per year, the total being £4520 for the PG Diploma plus the £100 registration fee.

If you wish to extend your period of study beyond the two years (i.e. beyond 1st September 2020) of the PG Diploma there will be a charge of £645 per year of agreed extension.

Application Procedure

Application for the course is made through the written application form. Please refer to the Application Checklist at the back of the Application Form for full instruction on requirements. Interviews are normally held in the spring and summer before the commencement of the course. Candidates will be notified by the Academic Administrator when a suitable time has been arranged. Owing to the demand for places, on being offered a place we require that students send us a £100 registration fee to secure their place. The course will run subject to satisfactory student recruitment.

Students with Disabilities and/or Special Needs

Sarum College has an equal opportunities policy and welcomes students with disabilities onto its courses. The suitability of college facilities will be discussed during the application process separately from other discussions. Please fill in the necessary parts of the application form to facilitate this process.

Non-UK/EU students

Students from outside the EU/EEA who seek no financial support nor UK residency may be eligible to apply for postgraduate study at Sarum. Please discuss your circumstances with the Academic Dean to determine eligibility and arrange the appropriate documentation.
